Hot cross buns are the true embodiment of the holiday season. They are delicious, warm, and they smell absolutely divine. Every year, the smell of cinnamon and sugar fill the air when the first day of Advent begins. It smells just like Christmas! This year, why not make your own hot cross buns? Scent of cinnamon and cloves are combined with the flour to create the classic hot cross bun. After the buns rise in the oven for a few hours, glaze them with a mixture of milk, honey and spices. The result is a fluffy bun which is sweet, hot and irresistible! A hot cross bun is a traditional English holiday food. The buns themselves are a mix of the two main ingredients: a very moist and slightly sweet yeast dough flavored with ground almonds. They rise and then are shaped into a cross-like shape. Once baked, the buns are sprinkled with powdered sugar or cinnamon before they are covered with honey and glazed. A hot cross bun is traditional in most English pubs as a drink or dessert. You can find it in the breakfast menu, as an afternoon snack, or at lunch or dinner. Hot cross buns are an easy and great gift that is a good addition to any celebration!
